Word of the Day – Savvy

Transcript

Hi everyone. This is Paul. Today's word of the day is savvy. Savvy is used as an adjective and a noun. It is used informally and is positive. So the definition of savvy is to know something very well. For example you can say,

"Savvy shoppers always are looking for sales and never buy things at full price."

So what you're trying to say here is experienced shoppers, shoppers who know what they are looking for, never buy things at full price. Or, usually I get this comment a lot.

"Would you be able to help me with this computer problem? I'm not very computer savvy."

So what you're trying to tell the person is I need help with computers because I don't know much about computers. Now for a more formal way of saying savvy you can say "...not well informed...", or "...not well versed...", or "...it's not my particular field or expertise..."
