Word of the Day – Tamper

Transcript

The word of the day today is tamper. Tamper is a verb. This is used when someone does something that alters a state of being that is usually not wanted. This is usually something that is negative. For instance, let's say the office in which you work at is always cold. But some employees prefer to work in a colder environment, whereas others prefer to work in a warmer climate. So then, if a few employees keep adjusting the thermostat, the system could malfunction with the excessive tampering. You could complain,

“With the constant tampering of the thermostat, we are now without heat until maintenance can come and fix the thermostat.”

Perhaps you have a brother who thinks he can fix anything, despite having no training or experience. And perhaps you have a brand-new television that suddenly malfunctions. You could tell him,

“Please do not tamper with the internal wiring, I have a service contract with the supplier.”

In this way you could thwart your brother from meddling as you have preemptively purchased a contract to ensure that your new purchase will not be tampered by your brother. I hope you found this word useful in expressing your thoughts more clearly. For more information you can find the script at Practicus.co.kr.
