Troy's Summary

South Korean president Park Geun-hye's visit to China and her subsequent participation in the massive military parade in Beijing is stirring up a bit of controversy as well as apprehension.

Recent history between the U.S. and China indicates a relationship filled with tension. It is well known that the military alliance between South Korea and the U.S. forms the backbone of South Korea's security. But this new shift in dynamics between China and South Korea can place South Korea in a precarious situation with the U.S.

Korea will hope that the strategic partnership with China will not only enhance the Korean economy, but more importantly facilitate the reunification of the peninsula. But Park is now in the position of having to convince Obama that Korea's improved relations with China will bear no consequence to the Seoul-Washington alliance.

Many will be extremely intrigued to see how president Park will manage balancing on this delicate tightrope in the upcoming months.
