Summary

If you are looking for a case that matches the meaning of the expression “the snowball effect,” the example would be the “Burning Sun” scandal that’s been making headlines for over a month. It all started with an alleged assault in a nightclub. Then, suspicions about drug use, hidden cameras, sexual assault and prostitution emerged. Finally, it snowballed into a bribery case involving police officers including a high-ranking member. In the process, names of many K-pop stars have been mentioned, most notably Seungri of the K-pop idol group, Big Bang. President Moon emphasize the need for a thorough investigation. Along with other sex scandals hitting the headlines recently, the Korean public expects to see more breaking news in the next few months.

Sex scandals and misbehavior of celebrities are all too common, but this time the scope and the depth of the scandal look incomparable. Is it just a series of misconduct by a limited number of misguided K-pop stars and celebrities? Or is it the tip of the iceberg that involves a corrupt connection between the entertainment industry and law enforcement? People are curious and hope justice will be served.
